Information on Bosch Solar product and performance guarantees

27th March 2013

Dear Sirs,

This communication comes in reference to the Bosch Group's decision to terminate activities in the area of crystalline photovoltaics, made public on 22/03/2013.

In connection to this, we are receiving an increasing number of enquiries from existing and potential customers regarding existing product and performance guarantees and any possible guarantee claims.

In order to prevent misunderstandings, we hereby declare that existing claims of our customers will be in no way affected by the decision made by the Bosch Group. This means that all product and performance guarantees we have issued shall remain valid in their entirety and we shall provide settlement for all justified claims in the same way as Bosch customers all over the world can expect. The same applies for sales of modules after 22/03/2013.

In addition we shall ensure that, even after the termination of production of solar cells and/or modules by Bosch Solar Energy AG, a customer service will still be available to our customers. This customer service unit will be responsible for all issues regarding guarantees and shall also ensure the fulfilment of existing operation and maintenance (O&M) agreements and any O&M agreements made following the announcement of the Bosch Group's decision.

However, the particulars are currently being determined and for this we ask for your understanding. We will inform you without delay as soon as the details have been settled.
